RISKS

ECONOMIC RISKS

In 2024, the global economy continues to face numerous challenges and opportunities. Despite positive signs from some major economies, the overall picture remains volatile and unpredictable. Global inflationary pressures are showing signs of easing thanks to tight monetary policies by central banks. Geopolitical tensions, particularly the Russia-Ukraine conflict, continue to cause global economic instability, driving up energy and food prices.

Despite being affected by the complex fluctuations of the global economy, Vietnam has achieved significant accomplishments. The government has implemented many effective measures to control inflation, contributing to market stability and protecting people's lives; increasing attention is being paid to sustainable development, with action programs on environmental protection, climate change response, and renewable energy development. Global economic fluctuations, especially trade tensions and geopolitical conflicts, remain major risks for the Vietnamese economy.

Ho Chi Minh City's socio-economic situation in 2024 has many positive signs, with key economic sectors recording positive growth, especially the service sector. The city is focusing on investing in key transportation projects to improve transportation capacity and reduce congestion; investing in upgrading the bus system, encouraging people to use public transportation. At the same time, 2024 marks a significant turning point in the recovery of the travel and tourism industry. With complete reopening and effective tourism stimulus policies, the tourism industry has witnessed strong growth and achieved significant results.

The company continues to closely monitor the market situation, striving to proactively implement synchronous solutions to stabilize and develop production and business.

INPUT FACTOR RISKS

Fuel is the company's primary energy source for passenger transport operations. In 2024, fuel prices may fluctuate sharply due to various factors such as geopolitical situations, global supply and demand, and policies of oil-producing countries. This poses difficulties for the company in forecasting costs and planning business operations. When fuel prices increase, vehicle operating costs also rise, reducing the company's profits.

COMPETITIVE RISKS

The increase in personal motorcycles and cars has led many people to choose to travel by private vehicles instead of buses. The development of ride-hailing services has created new competition in the passenger transport industry, attracting a large number of consumers with promotions and advertising. In addition, there are other transportation service providers, putting pressure on the Company. The Company must always develop plans and visions for the future; especially developing the Company's core business to increase revenue, planning for the upgrade of vehicles and in-vehicle amenities to improve the efficiency of route operations.

OTHER RISKS

Risks such as war, fire, natural disasters, epidemics, and changes in legal regulations are also among the risks that seriously affect the Company's production operations. Although these risks have a low frequency of occurrence, they cause very large losses in terms of personnel as well as company assets. To minimize losses when force majeure risks occur, the Company has contingency plans such as: installing fire alarm and fire fighting systems, developing contingency plans to deal with unexpected situations.

LEGAL AND POLICY RISKS

SaigonBus's production and business operations are subject to the regulations of the Vietnamese legal system, such as the Enterprise Law, Investment Law, and tax policies. In addition, as a large-scale public company, SaigonBus is also affected by the legal framework of the Vietnamese Stock Market. Besides the general legal framework, SaigonBus is also governed by industry-specific regulations and sanctions such as the Law on Traffic Order and Safety. Currently, some laws, sanctions, and policies are being renewed, so the Company regularly updates legal documents to promptly forecast and help the Company operate in compliance with legal regulations.

ENVIRONMENTAL RISKS

To contribute to the cause of a green, clean, and beautiful environment, reduce emissions, and implement the transportation sector's action program on green energy transition, carbon and methane emission reduction, the Company has upgraded to CNG buses, electric buses, and improved service quality to encourage people to limit the use of private vehicles, ensuring that environmental emission reduction is controlled.

OPERATIONAL SAFETY AND SERVICE QUALITY RISKS

SaigonBus always focuses on improving and enhancing service to maintain close relationships with customers, ensuring customer satisfaction with the company's staff service. The company always creates conditions for employees to access courses on communication, calmness in work, and situation handling when the situation tends to be negative; focusing on the level of security on each trip, ensuring the safety of passengers' personal belongings. SaigonBus has deployed the installation of convenient facilities such as automatic ticket vending machines, announcement speakers, and cameras on vehicles to improve service quality. SaigonBus always strives to fulfill the motto "Your satisfaction - Our pride". In addition, SaigonBus is committed to putting passenger safety first, ensuring a safe and reliable service experience for every customer.
