6. RISKS

◀ Economic risks

In 2024, the global economy was negatively affected by many major fluctuations, including geopolitical tensions between countries, the escalation of the US-China trade war and the increasing global public debt. As a part of the global economy, Vietnam's economy was also inevitably affected by these impacts. In addition, the domestic economy also faced other risks such as exchange rate fluctuations due to the strengthening of the USD, a decline in export turnover due to weakening import demand from major markets, along with increasing competitive pressure in attracting foreign direct investment (FDI) from countries in the region.

However, the above negative developments cannot hinder the development of the service industry in general and the telecommunications industry in particular. According to a report from the General Statistics Office, in 2024, the total revenue from telecommunications activities is estimated to reach VND 355.4 trillion, an increase of 4.0% over the previous year (excluding the price increase of nearly 4.0%). However, the domestic telecommunications - technology industry still faces many potential risks, especially in the context of a global economy in 2025 that is forecasted to be highly unpredictable".

Being aware of the ongoing economic risks, VNTT has continuously improved and strengthened its capital management and control within business operations to ensure to meet financial targets. At the same time, VNTT closely monitors economic developments to promptly propose appropriate solutions, maintaining stability in its production and business activities.

◀ Exchange rate risk

The open economic context facilitates the free flow of capital and resources across countries. As a result, exchange rates between currencies fluctuate frequently, including the exchange rate between the Vietnamese dong (VND) and the US dollar (USD). In 2024, the VND/USD exchange rate experienced significant volatility due to the influence of both domestic and international economic factors.

Because the domestic market is not yet able to meet the demand, most of VNTT's equipment, machinery, and input materials are imported from international markets, leading to VNTT facing risks from exchange rate fluctuations. This risk can cause input prices to be unstable, affecting VNTT's profits.

Being aware of the existing problem, on the one hand, VNTT has a policy of holding foreign currency earned from transactions with partners and customers, on the other hand, VNTT uses financial instruments to hedge against risks from exchange rate fluctuations.

◀ Legal risks

Legal risks are risks arising from untimely or inappropriate application of legal documents in the process of implementing VNTT's business activities.

As a company operating in the field of information technology, VNTT faces risks of violating legal regulations on business activities in general such as the Enterprise Law, the Accounting Law or the Labor Code as well as the risk of violating legal regulations for businesses operating in this industry such as the Law on Cyber Security and the Law on Information Technology.

Not only that, because the Vietnamese legal system is still in the development and completion stage, shortcomings still exist. Therefore, if VNTT does not promptly update amendments and supplements in the laws that directly affect production and business activities, it may commit violations.

Being aware of the above risks, VNTT always monitors, researches and updates legal documents, and consults with legal experts on legal issues beyond VNTT's ability to resolve.

◀ Industry-specific risks

With the rapid development and continuous change of technology, choosing the right solution and technology for the job requires proper assessment and suitability to the needs of each investor to ensure efficiency. As the requirements for quality and productivity are increasing, while costs need to be minimized, continuous measurement and assessment during the development process is essential. Improving human resources capacity to adapt to changes and new processes, as well as applying modern technology and labor tools, are very important.

The rapid pace of change in technology will have a great impact on the business efficiency of technology and electronic equipment, making investment more difficult due to new value and limited exploitation capabilities. To minimize this risk, VNTT has chosen a selective investment plan, carefully analyzed the market and built detailed plans, ensuring financial, market and technology targets for each project. At the same time, VNTT also combines the purchase of risk insurance to minimize the impact on technology and electronic equipment.

In addition, labor is also a factor that mark up the costs of businesses in the industry.

◀ Other risks

In addition to specific risks, there are also unavoidable risks such as epidemics, natural disasters (floods, droughts, etc.), VNTT always heightens vigilance, regularly inspect equipment, buys necessary property insurance to avoid unnecessary losses, and ensures continuous business operations. For human resources, as a resource contributing to creating products for VNTT, VNTT always provides training and development opportunities, procures insurance for employees, supports policies and creates a healthy working environment.

SOLVENCY RATIO

Unit: Time

In 2024, the coefficients representing VNTT's solvency indicators are the current ratio and quick ratio, both experienced a downward trend. In particular, the current ratio decreased slightly from 5.00 times to 4.65 times and the quick ratio decreased by about 12% to 3.42 times.

The reason for this decrease is that the increase in current assets was lower than the increase in current liabilities. In particular, short-term liabilities increased by nearly 22% from VND 74,321 million to VND 90,594 million, mainly due to the increase in short-term trade payables, nearly 114% from VND 16.7 million to VND 35.8 million. Meanwhile, short-term assets increased by only about 13% from VND 371,959 million to VND 421,183 million, with the largest increase belonging to short-term financial investments (103% from VND 80 million).

This change reflects VNTT's flexible investment strategy and current asset allocation. Specifically, holding many short-term financial investments brings high liquidity, helps manage cash flow effectively, reduces risk and increases flexibility in investment strategy. In addition, increasing short-term payables helps enterprise postpone cash payments to suppliers, thereby maintaining short-term cash flow.

PERFORMANCE INDICATORS

Unit: Turn

The Company's performance evaluation coefficients in 2024 showed a slight decrease compared to the same period last year. Specifically, the total asset turnover decreased by about 5% from 0.69 to 0.65 and the inventory turnover decreased by nearly 9% from 2.74 to 2.48.

The reason for this decrease is mainly due to the increase in total assets in general and inventories in particular. Specifically, total assets increased by 9% from VND 528,854 million to VND 576,968 million and inventories increased by about 33% to VND 110,974 million.

In addition, Net revenue from sales and service rendered also decreased slightly compared to the previous year. Net revenue decreased from VND 363.3 million to VND 360.8 million, equivalent to a decrease of nearly 1%. Similarly, the cost of goods sold decreased by nearly VND 43 million to VND 241.3 million.

The general downward trend of these two coefficients reflects the difficulties that the business has encountered. In 2024, fluctuations in the global economy in general and the domestic economy in particular have affected consumer spending demand, thereby affecting the Company's revenue. However, VNTT has made efforts to keep these indicators from too heavy decrease compared to the previous year.

3. IMPROVEMENTS IN ORGANIZATIONAL STRUCTURE, POLICIES, AND MANAGEMENT

For recruitment policy: VNTT is located far from the city center, so recruitment also faces many difficulties. To improve recruitment, the Human Resources Department has implemented a proactive and multi-channel approach strategy. In addition to effectively using online channels such as recruitment pages, social networks and the company website, VNTT also increases its direct presence through active participation in job fairs and recruitment days at universities. This demonstrates a commitment to expanding the pool of potential candidates and attracting talent, despite of geographical difficulties.

For the policy of improving the quality of human resources through comprehensive training programs: In 2024, VNTT showed a strong investment in human resource development through a diverse and professional training program. The Human Resources Department worked closely with internal units to successfully organize 18 outsourced training courses.
